

GERMANS ROUT BRITISH IN BIG AIR BATTLE— MACKENSEN BREAKS RUSSIAN LINE

Berlin, via Wireless to Sayville, L. I.—British aviators who attempted a great aerial raid on German north sea coast Sunday morning were routed by German airmen.

German airships sighted British sky flotilla off Herschelling at dawn. It consisted of several hydroaeroplanes and aeroplanes, accompanied by motorboats, cruisers and destroyers.

Paris.—Over trenches wrecked by French artillery, British regiment won a brilliant victory southwest of Pilken. English dashed forward and drove enemy out with bayonet.

Violent battle raging from Arras northward to sea. Germans have launched heavy attacks near Souchez railway station. Every onslaught repulsed.

Berlin, via Wireless to Sayville, L. I.—Russian line near Krasnik broken in two. One part driven eastward and other toward Lublin and Ivanogorod. Warsaw threatened by Austro-German advance."

Mackensen's troops pursuing Russians south of Lublin. Slav commanders hurling best troops against Austro-Germans in vain efforts to stop rush through southeastern Poland. Enormous number of prisoners taken by Mackensen.

Constantinople, vit Berlin Wireless.—Italian consuls leaving Turkey. Italian ambassador expected to depart in short time.

Berlin.—British minister to Bulgaria, Sir Bax-Ironside, withdrawn because of undiplomatic attitude in negotiations between allies and Bulgaria.

Athens.—Gen. Liman von Sanders, German commander at Dardanelles, has been wounded for second time. Not serious.

London.—British steamer Anglo-California shelled by German submarine. Seven of crew killed.

Petrograd.—By terrific bombardment of Slav trenches, General Mackensen has won temporary victory in first stages of battle south of Lublin. From Krasnik, eastward to Wieprz river Russians have been forced to retire on 38-mile front.

Between Wieprz river and the Bug, all Austro-German attacks were beaten back with heavy losses. In one narrow section between Krylof and Sokal, 58 miles north of Lemberg, Russians took several hundred prisoners.

—o—o— EVERY NATION REALLY WANTS PEACE, SAYS JANE ADDAMS

New York, July 6.—"Every nation now at war, or at least those I visited, is ready for peace, but they want peace with dignity and therefore cannot make a move that would be considered a weakness in the eyes of the enemy," was the statement of Miss Jane Addams of Chicago when she returned here from Europe yesterday from her mission as a delegate in the interest of peace to the International Congress of Women at The Hague.

No belligerent power could sue for peace, we were told," she said, "but neutral nations might submit a number of propositions and something might be found that could be used as a beginning for negotiations.

"During my travels in Europe I found two parties in each of the fighting nations, the military and the civil factions. Between these two parties there is a constant and bitter struggle to rule the government. The military faction wants to continue fighting until victory comes to their arms. The civil party wants peace at once."
